

Consultancy builds on firm foundations

Snape Munroe is a well-respected chartered building consultancy and commercial building surveying practice.

They offer a comprehensive range of commercial building surveying services including:

- schedules of dilapidations and condition
- building surveys
- project management of refurbishment, alteration and repair works
- property defect surveys
- building regulation and planning applications.

From their strategic base in Keighley, Snape Munroe's broad client base includes private individuals and large business organisations with regional and national profiles.

The practice has more than a decade of experience within the property and construction industries, with an extensive knowledge of all commercial property types including retail, leisure, industrial and office accommodation.

Director Andrew Snape said: "At Snape Munroe, our aim is to provide dynamic, commercially-aware, professional advice to meet your specific needs. We believe people from diverse professional and personal backgrounds, who have a variety of life experiences and interests, have the right 'mix' of attributes to deliver this aim."

This philosophy is demonstrated by Andrew himself, who before setting up Snape Munroe spent eight years with national property consultants CB Richard Ellis, based in their Leeds and Manchester offices.

In his formative years, Andrew travelled the world and cites this as one of his most memorable and challenging life experiences. During this time he held a number of temporary jobs to fund his travels, including mango picking and gold prospecting!
